Donovan In Cuba:

Optimism Runs High For Prisoner Release

HAVANA (AP) — Negotiators seeking to exchange food and medicine for 1,113 Cuban invasion prisoners were reported conferring Tuesday night with Prime Minister Fidel Castro. There was guarded optimism that the men might be released by Christmas.

A four-member negotiating team headed by James B. Donovan of New York arrived earlier in the day from Miami, Fla.

Donovan, New York attorney who engineered the swap of American U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers for Russian spy Rudolf Abel, flew here from Miami accompanied by three Cuban negotiators.

The four were whisked from the airport in Cuban security service automobiles.

They were reported to have been taken to the home of Mrs. Berta Barreto, one of the four negotiators. Previous talks on the prisoners' release were held there.

Also arriving were Alvaro Sanchez and Mrs. Virginia Betancourt, officials of the Cuban Families Committee composed of prisoners' relatives.

Relatives Jubilant

Relatives in Cuba were jubilant. They heard over U.S. and Cuban radio that an American freighter was ready to deliver food and medicine in exchange for the captives taken in the ill-fated April 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion.

Castro demanded $62 million for their freedom, and later agreed to food and medicine valued by him at $62 million.

Steaming from Baltimore to Port Everglades, Fla., north of Miami, was the S.S. African Pilot. The 435-foot freighter, loaned by the Farrell Lines to the American Red Cross, which assumed sponsorship of the prisoner exchange, is expected at the Florida port Thursday.

If the prisoners are released, they probably will be flown in charter planes to Miami, Cuban Families Committee officials said.

The Red Cross was stockpiling food and medicine gifts in warehouses at OPA-Locke Air Field in the Miami area.

W. D. Dibrow, southeastern U.S. disaster director for the Red Cross, said the donations would be transferred to the African Pilot or other vessels designated for transportation if the swap materialized. He said many contributions had been received from pharmaceutical companies.

In Washington, State Department sources said Donovan and the committee were quite successful in soliciting donations, particularly from U.S. drug firms offering the medicines supposed to go to Castro under the exchange deal.

Lincoln White, State Department press officer, declined comment when asked whether the U.S. government contributed money or food and medicine for the release of the prisoners.

Lawrence Sums Up Term In Final Press Conference

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Lawrence said Tuesday he will leave office with no regrets, no animosities and no plans other than to return to Pittsburgh, his insurance business and to stay in active politics.

The 73-year-old retiring chief executive was in a reminiscent mood as he met with newsmen for one of his last weekly news conferences. Lawrence's term expires with the swearing in of Gov.-elect William W. Scranton at noon on Jan. 15.

He dispensed with the few current topics in the first few minutes, reporting:

—He has received no recommendations from U.S. Rep. William J. Green Jr., Philadelphia Democratic chairman, regarding two vacancies among that city's magistrates.

—There is nothing on a possible appointment to a presidential Commission on Housing.

—Deputy Commerce Secretary Eric Jones made little success in his tour of California industries to find a tenant for the idle Quehanna facilities in North-Central Pennsylvania.

No Interference

—He has not interfered in any way with the Defense Department's plan to eliminate the 79th Infantry Division, an Army reserve unit made up mainly of Pennsylvanians. ("I abhor the interference of the politicians with the military," Lawrence declared.)

—Doubts that he will get a Washington job, but adding that he couldn't say definitely.

—That if the incoming Scranton administration continues the policies of Highways Secretary Park H. Martin "we'll wind up with the best road system of any state in the world."

Asked to say what impressed him most during his four years as governor, Lawrence explained that this would depend upon an individual's own interests. His, he said, included:

"The road program and the fact that all of this money was spent and we're up to this point without a scandal of any kind. . . .

"The headway we've made in the field of education. . . .

Praises Goddard

"Conservation must have given people a feeling of great satisfaction with what Secretary (Maurice K.) Goddard has done."

Lawrence also included his traffic safety program and industrial development activity in this list, which he said was not given in order of priority.

"I leave here without a regret," he said.

"I've had wonderful personnel. I don't think any governor has ever had a better cabinet."

The governor said he had no animosities and expressed his wish to Scranton for "the greatest success for Pennsylvania."

GOP Leaders Laud Kennedy's Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — To the gratification of his friends and the admiring dismay of his foes, President Kennedy seems to have perfected the art of communication.

So much so that—

The Republican National Committee—reacting to Kennedy's taped radio-television interview Monday night—announced that "at some future time" it would ask the three networks for a similar forum for "full exposure" of the GOP philosophy. It did not say whom it would put on the airways as the Republican champion.

There was general agreement here Tuesday that "Conversation with the President"—the four-man news conference recorded in advance in the White House office—was a flawless gem of its kind.

Rep. Clarence J. Brown, Ohio Republican, said the interview was "the clearest piece of political public relations I have ever seen. The President handled himself very ably."

Brown's superlative cannot be taken lightly, because he has been in Congress since 1929 and remembers many a notable advance in the technique of fetching the voters.

Brown's admiration was qualified, of course. "Many of the President's statements," he said, "could be subject to further discussion."

How to manage this further discussion is a big question for the GOP. Should party leaders demand equal time? The law says this must be granted to political candidates. But (you can take it from the White House) Kennedy was talking as President, absolutely not as a man with his eye on 1964.

No Definite Plans

Aside from the law, the policy of the Federal Communications Commission calls on television and radio to give well-rounded treatment to controversies. The GOP said it was making no flat demand now for equal time. But it expressed the hope for a comparable sounding board because it said the Kennedy show "resulted in substantial benefits to the Democrats and their probable 1964 candidate."

The GOP's nominee, or nominees, for its televised riposte had not been decided. They could include former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, or three gubernatorial luminaries—Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania and George Romney of Michigan. Plus perhaps Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, or perhaps Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, idol of conservatives.

Kennedy Sends U.S. Military Team To Congo On Eve Of Bahamas Talk

Surprise Move Precedes Meeting With Macmillan

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP)—President Kennedy quickly seized the initiative with a surprise move in the Congo conflict Tuesday at the opening of the Bahamas talks with Britain's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

The two are meeting in balmy December weather to seek an end of the Skybolt missile dispute and to strengthen the U.S.-British alliance in the cold war.

But even before their preliminaries on those major issues, U.S. government sources disclosed a decision by Kennedy to send a top level U.S. military mission to the Congo—an area of great concern to the British government also.

Amount Undetermined

The amount and nature of the equipment depends on the result of the survey by the U.S. military mission, which is due in New York Wednesday en route to the Congo, a U.N. spokesman said. Sources in Nassau said the mission is expected to complete its survey before the year's end.

Kennedy and Macmillan are scheduled to discuss the Congo situation in detail Wednesday. Also on Wednesday's agenda is the U.S. intention to scrap the Skybolt, the air-to-ground missile on which Britain had pinned its nuclear deterrent plans in the mid 1960s.

Other topics up for review are the Soviet-Red Chinese split and the Red Chinese-Indian border war.

Both Kennedy and Macmillan expressed optimism that they would resolve U.S.-British differences successfully.

But the U.S.-British alliance has not been without strains, and the Congo is one of them.

The United States has given strong support to U.N. efforts to get Katanga's President Moise Tshombe to end his secession from the Central Congolese government, to begin sharing Katanga's wealth with the Leopoldville regime, and to give up his independent military force.

The British government, while supporting these aims, has cautioned repeatedly against actions it considers severe, and only reluctantly agreed to join in an embargo on Katanga's mineral exports should such a move be invoked to compel Tshombe to end his secession.

The British have a major stake in Katanga investments and fear that adverse Congo developments may complicate their position in the neighboring British-sponsored Central African Federation, made up of the Rhodesias and Nyasaland.

The temperature was 75 Tuesday as Kennedy landed in this British colony, 180 miles southeast of Miami, after a two-hour flight from Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

Macmillan had arrived Monday night.

Toughest Problem

The toughest nut facing them in British-American relations was Skybolt, an unproved American bomber-to-target missile that the Kennedy administration wants to junk. This idea has been received with distaste in Britain, which planned to arm its air fleet with Skybolts and sees no immediate substitute within its price range.

Kennedy said in a filmed radio-television interview broadcast in the United States only Monday night that the Skybolt was not essential to the West's nuclear defenses.

Macmillan, however, is under pressure from both his own Conservatives and opposition Laborites on the potential gap in British national defenses.

Secretary Hodges Urges Tax Cut For Individuals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges said Tuesday he believes President Kennedy still wants next year's proposed tax cuts made retroactive to Jan. 1 and declared his own view that most of the reduction should be in the personal income tax.

Hodges said the individual income tax savings would have a quicker stimulative effect than corporate rate cuts, getting the extra buying power more quickly "into the mainstream of the economy."

Hodges disclosed at a news conference that national output now has topped the $560 billion-a-year rate and predicted that production gains will continue to set new records in 1963.

Pace Not Satisfactory

"But the pace is not satisfactory," Hodges said, and tax reduction is needed to stimulate the rate of business expansion "over the long pull."

Although Kennedy, in his speech last week to the New York Economic Club, did not mention Jan. 1, 1963, as the target date for tax reduction to take effect, Hodges told a questioner that he thinks this is what the President recommended.

This conflicted with a widely held impression that Kennedy, confronted with the coolness of congressional leaders to a retroactive reduction, has backed away from his original plan to seek a two-stage bill with a portion of the cuts being made effective as of New Year's Day.

Hodges said he is standing by his earlier assertion that Congress should go ahead with tax reduction without waiting for the tax reforms and loophole-closings which the administration wants included in the tax program.

New Satellite To Aid Navigation

POINT ARGUELLO, Calif. (AP)—Creating a spectacular glow seen from San Francisco to San Diego, a Scout rocket shot aloft Tuesday night carrying a satellite designed to become a new guiding star for ships and submarines.

The brilliance of the solid-fuel rocket's contrail, reportedly observed as far east as Utah, was attributed to atmospheric conditions. Heavy fog was rolling in along the coast at the time of the 5:26 p.m. launching, and moisture in the air caused the formation of a giant circle of light in the sky.

The satellite atop the rocket, called Transit 5A, was scheduled to be the first of a network of four which by the end of 1963 should give ocean vessels anywhere in the world a quick fix on their positions in any kind of weather.

This information will be of vital importance to Polaris-type submarines, which must know their position precisely before missiles can be launched.

Current methods of navigation by the stars require clear skies. Transit 5A's four-stage solid fuel Scout booster was aimed south toward an orbit around the earth's poles.

A spokesman called the launching a complete success and said details of the orbit achieved would be announced in a few hours.

As he spoke, light from the sun below the horizon turned the rocket's contrail into beautiful shades of white and green and rose. Winds quickly distorted the rocket's exhaust into a series of rings.

Switchboards in Los Angeles, about 120 miles southwest of Point Arguello, and many other cities were flooded with calls after the glow tinted the skies.

Bloom Drops Chairmanship; Will Be State Secretary

HARRISBURG (AP) — George Bloom resigned Tuesday as Republican State Chairman to accept an appointment as Gov.-elect William W. Scranton's secretary of the Commonwealth.

At the same time both Scranton and Bloom endorsed Craig Truax, 34, as Bloom's successor as state chairman.

Scranton earlier named Henry D. Harral, 60, Penn. Wynne, Montgomery county, as highways secretary.

Bloom said he would call a meeting of the 117-member Republican State Committee on Jan. 14 to act on his resignation and to elect his successor.

Scranton and his cabinet will take office the next day.

Bloom, 64-year-old Washington County attorney, has been state chairman since 1956.

Scranton shortly after the election disclosed he had given Bloom the choice of staying on as chairman or accepting a cabinet job.

The governor-elect has stated that he does not want key personnel in his administration holding political jobs.

Truax is a native of Gosport, Ind. He has been in Pennsylvania for eight years. He has been with the state committee since 1956 and its executive director since 1959.

Bloom, who has been serving without pay as state chairman, will receive $20,000 a year as a cabinet member. Truax, who is now being paid $12,000 a year, will get approximately $20,000 a year as state chairman.

Harral, a Republican who once served as first deputy secretary of highways in the administration of former Democratic Gov. George M. Leader, has 38 years of experience in government administration. His specialty is highways administration.

A civil engineer, Harral is a former street commissioner of Philadelphia, where he also served under Democratic administrations. He is a graduate of Pennsylvania State University.

UN Requests Council To Curb Portugal On Angola

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The U.N. General Assembly asked the Security Council Tuesday to impose penalties on Portugal in an effort to compel that country to set its African territory of Angola on the road to independence.

Asian-African nations supported by the Communist bloc approved a harshly worded resolution calling for sanctions—the diplomatic term for penalties—by a vote of 57 to 14 with 18 abstentions.

Twenty-one nations were absent. The United States, Britain and France opposed the resolution. That cast doubt on any actual call for sanctions since each has a big power veto in the council.

Five additional allies of Portugal in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization joined in the no vote. They were Canada, Italy, the Netherlands, Luxembourg and Turkey. Others voting no included Austria, Bolivia, New Zealand, South Africa, Spain and Portugal.

Three NATO powers were among the abstainers—Denmark, Greece and Norway.

The resolution was the toughest of any yet passed by the Assembly in dealing with Angola, the sprawling territory on Africa's southwest coast where Portuguese rule is being challenged by independence-seeking natives.

By its action the Assembly requested all member states to stop arms shipments to Portugal—a move directed at the NATO allies.

Under the U.N. charter, the council is empowered to call on U.N. members for a partial or complete interruption of economic relations and communications links with an offending country, and the severance of diplomatic relations. The resolution approved Tuesday did not spell out what kind of penalties should be applied.

Dominican Polls Back On Schedule

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—A church-political crisis that threatened to upset the Dominican Republic's first free election in 38 years appears to have been resolved.

A heavy turnout is expected in Thursday's voting with the retraction by a Roman Catholic priest of his charge that a frontrunner for the presidency was a Communist.

Juan Bosch, 53, and his left-of-center Dominican Revolutionary Party (PRD) were believed to be prepared to declare themselves back in the race after threatening to boycott the election in protest against the accusation.

Throughout the day, paratroopers had surrounded Dia's home in the Medina sector of Dakar where he was conferring with five of his followers.

After the assembly took away Dia's immunity from arrest, the troops moved in and seized him.

The Rev. Lantico Garcia publicly withdrew his charge that Bosch was a "Marxist-Leninist" after a five-hour television-radio debate with the revolutionary leader Monday night.

Bosch, who has vehemently denied any Communist links, said he was satisfied with the young Spanish Jesuit's retraction.

Bosch, directing his appeal to the peasantry in rural areas, and Dr. Viriato A. Fiallo, 63, of the Conservative National Civic Union, are the leading contenders in the six-man field for the presidency.

The government went ahead with the plans for the election as if nothing had happened. Provisional President Rafael Bonnelly, who took over as the head of a ruling council set up seven months after the slaying of dictator Rafael L. Trujillo in May 1961, was ready to hand over power to the elected regime in February.

Scranton and his cabinet will take office the next day.

Bloom, 64-year-old Washington County attorney, has been state chairman since 1956.

Scranton shortly after the election disclosed he had given Bloom the choice of staying on as chairman or accepting a cabinet job.

The governor-elect has stated that he does not want key personnel in his administration holding political jobs.

Shortway Contract Is Awarded

HARRISBURG (A.)—The State Highways Department awarded a $3,794,355 contract Tuesday for construction of a 6.64 mile stretch of the Keystone Shortway in Montour and Columbia counties.

The contract went to Glasgow, Inc., of Glenside.

It calls for construction of four lanes of road, a 60-foot median and eight bridges in Valley, Hemlock and West Hemlock Twp., between Danville and Bloomsburg.

The secretary-designate will succeed Park H. Martin in the $20,000 a year post. Martin, a Republican who served under Democratic administrations, was appointed to the cabinet job in 1959 by Gov. Lawrence.

In naming Harral, Scranton said:

"The next administration will have two main objectives in its highway program—one, to move along as rapidly as possible in the construction of needed new roads, particularly the interstate system; two, to maintain existing roads with greater efficiency."

"I believe that Mr. Harral has the experience and professional competence to administer such a program successfully."

Harral is serving as the current secretary of the regional conference of elected officials, an organization made up of officials of local governments in the three-state area of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

News Strike Expected To Be Prolonged

NEW YORK (AP)—Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz struck Thursday that the 11-day printers strike that has blacked out New York's nine major newspapers could continue for six or eight weeks or even into March.

Wirtz met with Mayor Robert F. Wagner to discuss not only the newspaper strike but also a threatened Atlantic and Gulf Port dock strike.

An 80-day Taft-Hartley "cooling off" injunction against a dock strike expires Sunday.

Earlier, peace talks were resumed for the first time in a week between the AFL-CIO International Typographical Union and the publishers. But they got nowhere and were recessed until Wednesday.

The 3,000-member ITU struck Dec. 8 in a demand for an $18.45 weekly pay raise, over two years. Base pay now averages $141 a week. The publishers association of New York offered an $8 package for the two years.

Stroud Youth Accidentally Shoots Self

AN 18-year-old Stroud Township resident accidentally shot himself in the right thigh about 6:10 a.m. yesterday when he picked up his .22 caliber rifle by the barrel and attempted to pull it from a bush.

John R. Imbt of 2016 N. Fifth St. was taken to Monroe County General Hospital. Physicians said the bullet apparently passed through the leg without breaking any bones and listed his condition as good.

Walking Trap Line

Imbt and a companion, Richard J. Thorne, 15, of 1830 Wallace St., Stroud Township, were walking a trap line along the Brodheads Creek in the Stokes Mill Road area when the accident occurred.

State Police of the local barracks said Imbt fell and dropped the rifle when he slipped on a snow-covered embankment. The rifle landed in shrubs and discharged when Imbt tried to pull it out.

Imbt was taken to the hospital by Mrs. Natalie Kohn, East Stroudsburg, RD 3, who lives near the scene of the accident.

Martz Bus Strike Still Stalemated

DEVELOPMENTS were still lacking yesterday in the Martz Bus Co. strike in Wilkes-Barre which has been in progress since Nov. 6.

The company services many stations in the Pocono Mountains.

Dr. Samuel A. Rosenberg, executive director of the Labor Management-Citizens Committee of the Greater Wilkes-Barre Chamber of Commerce, reported he has been unsuccessful in bringing together two principals in the dispute.

They are Frank Martz, head of the bus firm, and Charles O. Cicchino, international representative, Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America.

30,000 Deer Killed In State

HARRISBURG — About 30,000 deer were killed Monday as an estimated 150,000 hunters turned out for the one-day antlerless deer season, the State Game Commission reported Monday night. The estimates were based on preliminary reports received from district game supervisors.

There were no fatal accidents, but at least three persons were wounded.

Two other hunters suffered fatal heart attacks, according to the supervisors.

If the preliminary reports hold up, the kill will be nearly double that of the one-day 1961 season which was hampered by an ice storm.

A commission spokesman reported that an unidentified hunter killed near Hanover in Adams County a fawn with two noses and three eyes. Its head was turned over to the commission for research.

Conservatives Seek Enactment

LONDON (AP)—The Conservative government will seek enactment of a bill requiring advance notice by employer to laborer—and vice versa—in case of a job termination.

For example, an employee with five years or more service would get four weeks notice of discharge and would be required to give his employer equal notice if he quits.

CAS Wards To Visit Own Parents

HOLIDAY visits with their own parents are a tradition for wards of the Children's Aid Society of Monroe County, and the Children's Aid headquarters on Sarah Street have been decorated for the season by the members of the house committee.

Members of the board of directors have also supplied cookies for the visitors and staff. At the board meeting yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Horace Butler, president, thanked Mrs. William Wells and the house committee for their work.

There were 14 present for the board meeting held at the Penn-Stroud Hotel. Edwin Krawitz gave a report of the finance committee recommendations which were accepted, and Mrs. Butler reported on a meeting on the budget with the Monroe County Commissioners.

Individual Cases

Principal time at the meeting was devoted to the report on individual cases by Charles Jones, executive director, ranging from the acceptance of a nine-month old baby to the enlistment in the armed services of a 17 year old boy.

The statistical report showed 5 children from 21 families in placement and 71 children of 22 families under care in their own homes.

One new foster home was accepted and opened. There are 47 in boarding foster homes, one free in his own family home, five in institutions, one in Hershey School and one in an out-of-county adoption home.

56 Under Care

Children in their own homes include 56 under protective care, 7 family counseling, 4 post-placement counseling and 4 pre-placement counseling. One unwed mother is under care.

Jones also expressed his appreciation to the Junior Woman's Club who will provide funds for a Christmas gift for each child under care from the proceeds of their Christmas Dance to be held Dec. 29.

Present for the meeting were Mrs. Horace Butler, Rev. Joseph Carr, Francis Drake, Mrs. Jesse Flory, Mrs. J. F. Harris, Edwin Krawitz, Mrs. Frank Patterson, Mrs. Richard Primrose, Mrs. Harvey Pullen, Mrs. Frederick

WHY IS OIL HEAT MORE ECONOMICAL

LET'S LOOK AT THE RECORD

and learn how you can PROTECT YOURSELF against rising fuel costs!

1955				PERCENT INCREASE IN PRICES				1960

1. Cost of gas for home heating UP 20.8%* 2. Cost of all items in U.S. Consumer Price Index UP 10.5%* 3. Cost of Oil for Home Heating UP only 3.5%*

Modern Oil Heat offers its customers an advantage which trends show gas heat users may not expect . . . greater price stability! Over the years, according to national figures, the price of gas heat has continually risen while that of oil has retained a comparatively level pace. Since 1955, gas heating costs have gone up at the rate of 20.8% — more than 5 times the rate of oil — even the cost of living index has risen at a much lower 10.5% rate.*

* Official 1955-60 U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics National Figures

Why? Two chief factors keep Oil Heat costs down while utility rates soar: (1) It costs 4 times more to transport gas by pipeline than it does to transport an equivalent amount of oil heating value by tanker, and (2) Oil Heating is a highly competitive industry with many active suppliers while gas heat is supplied by one company — a monopoly.

Local Twist To Rhodes Scholarship

A RHODES Scholarship, one of the most coveted awards in the academic field, has been awarded to Ens. John Alfred Knubel, whose grandparents were active in community affairs in East Stroudsburg for many years.

John is the son of Mrs. Adelaide Kistler Knubel and the late John Knubel, of Fanwood, N. J. His grandfather was the late Milton S. Kistler, long cashier of the East Stroudsburg National Bank, a brother of Lee Kistler and Miss Mary Kistler of Stroudsburg. His grandmother was a sister of Mrs. Sadie Kirkham, East Stroudsburg, and the late Mrs. J. H. Lanterman.

John attended Brown University and was graduated from the United States Naval Academy last June. He was commissioned and is assigned to the Submarine School in Conn.

The Rhodes Scholarship is for two years of study at Oxford University in England. Knubel was one of 32 Americans from 23 states to win the award, established by the will of Cecil J. Rhodes. The latest honor is one of several offered to the young Knubel.

WIND GAP — An injunction against picketing at the local plant of Valerie Fashions was continued in Northampton County Court after a hearing Monday.

President Judge William G. Barthold ordered the injunction against picketing by Local 733 of the Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers Union. It became effective Dec. 3.

The court heard legal argument after a Teamsters agent and two truck drivers testified.

The central issue of the legal argument is whether a state court has jurisdiction to order the injunction.

Edmund P. Turzco, attorney for the State Belt Apparel Contractors Assn., Inc., claims it does, but Richard Kirschner of Philadelphia, the Teamsters' attorney, said it is clearly within the jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations Board.

Driver Hurt As Runaway Rig Overtakes

ROBERT J. Howell, 41, Syracuse, N.Y., was seriously injured at 2:45 a.m. yesterday when he was thrown from his runaway tractor-trailer as it overturned on Route 611 at Swiftwater.

He was reported in fair condition at Monroe County General Hospital last night. He suffered severe cuts of the face and head, which required 55 sutures, concussion and shock, possible fractures of the ribs and jaw and cuts and bruises of the back.

State Police at Mt. Pocono said Howell, traveling alone, was en route to New York City with a 35,000-pound cargo of onions. They said the air supply was cut off from his brakes as the unit started down a hill south of Mt. Pocono.

Losses Control

The unit coasted for a mile at speeds estimated at more than 70 miles an hour before Howell lost control on a slippery curve. The tractor-trailer went off the left side of the highway, climbed a five-foot embankment, traveled 240 feet along the top of the embankment, overturned and rolled back to the highway, blocking both south bound lanes.

Troopers directed traffic around the wreck for more than five hours. Damage to the unit was estimated at more than $7,000. Part of the cargo was salvaged.

New York Not Seen Raising Drinking Age

NEW YORK (AP) — State Sen. John J. Marchi said yesterday it is unlikely that New York will raise its "drinking age" limit to 21 years, but he called for stern enforcement of the present 18-year-old minimum.

Marchi, a Staten Island Republican, is chairman of the joint legislative committee for the study of the alcoholic beverage control law.

He said he personally favors raising the age limit to 21 only for out-of-state drinkers who come to New York to escape the 21-year age limit in their own states. However, he added at a news conference:

Some leaders of surrounding states, with 21-year-old minimums for drinking, have maintained that New York should raise its limit to the same level.

Shot To Death Accidentally

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Charles Jean, 3½, was shot to death accidentally yesterday by his uncle, a 16-year-old Williamsport High School football player.

Dr. Earl R. Miller, Lycoming County coroner, said Ronald Jean was taking care of his nephew while the child's parents were at church. The family home is at nearby Cascade.

The youth, who was on crutches because of a broken leg received in a Williamsport game Oct. 27, picked up a shotgun recently used for hunting. The gun went off as he handled it, the charge striking the child in the back of the head.

Miller ruled the death accidental.

Season For Sharing

Do you think of the million and one things still to be done before Christmas and wonder how you'll ever get through? The gifts to be bought . . . the cards to be addressed . . . the cookies and fruit cakes to be made . . . the indoor and outdoor decorating to be done.

But, each season, everything is finished on time . . . even though the peace may seem a little frantic at the end. And suddenly you realize, too, that all of these preparations could not have been accomplished on time had it not been for the family sharing of work and responsibility.

And, so in our community, if we share the responsibility of Christmas all of the necessary preparations will be completed on time. If we support The Salvation Army Christmas Appeal with our contribution, then there will be steaming holiday dinners for the hungry and homeless, Christmas remembrances for the sick and lonely, the imprisoned, and servicemen far from home, toys for children . . . and all the many things that symbolize the peace and good will of Christmas will be possible for those who might otherwise be forgotten.

As we share, we give practical expression to the glorious song of Christmas.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Tax-Exempt Real Estate

A state legislative committee which has been studying the request of Pennsylvania municipalities for the right to tax state-owned real estate within their boundaries reportedly has decided not to recommend such a measure. Rep. Van D. Yetter Jr. of Monroe County is chairman of the Joint State Government Commission Task Force on Properties, which has considered the question.

Of all the state's cities, Harrisburg is hardest hit, taxwise, through the exemption of Commonwealth-owned properties. Officials there have assessed this state real estate—on the basis of 60 per cent of full value, which applies to privately-owned properties—at $84.2 million. If the Commonwealth property were subject to taxation, the capital city would enjoy a 46 percent increase in revenue and in borrowing leeway.

The question of tax-exempt property in general has also engaged the attention of Pittsburgh city officials. The County Property Assessment Board recently disclosed that about one-third of the city's real estate—assessed at $485 million—is exempt from taxation. Included are not only city, county and state properties, but schools, institutions of higher learning, hospitals, railroads, public utilities, veterans' organizations, housing and parking authorities and real estate of charitable organizations.

Pointing out that the amount of tax-exempt property in Pittsburgh has increased by $73.3 million in the past six years, The Post-Gazette there editorially declared recently that "either the city must put a heavier tax burden on a diminishing number of taxpayers or it must find ways to end the tax exemptions on more properties." But Pittsburgh, like all other Pennsylvania municipalities, can look only to the Legislature for relief in this problem.

The 'Goon' And The Newsman

Washington — Secretary of State Dean Rusk appears far more anxious to deport a distinguished newsman, a representative of the Government of Katanga, than a convicted killer, the leader of a Chicago crime syndicate.

The newsman is Michel Struelens, head of the Katanga Information Service, New York. The goon is Paul De Lucia, alias Paul "the waiter" Ricca and Paul Maglio, who was ordered deported almost four years ago.

Struelens entered the United States in 1960 to serve as personal representative of Katanga President Moise Tshombe. Since that time he has toiled hard to bring the Katanga case to the American public. He has conferred with leaders of Congress, Republicans and Democrats, and supplied information to representatives of the nation's press.

Angered by the excellent press that Tshombe received, Administration officials a year ago launched an all-out attack upon Struelens, State Department top brass, including G. Mennen "Soapy" Williams and Carl T. Rowan, attacked Struelens as the head of a sinister, big-money "Katanga lobby."

When the charges were exposed as ridiculous, Administration leaders tried to deport Struelens, but backed off when liberal spokesmen scored the plan.

Now that a concerted U. N. attack has been launched to destroy Katanga, Administration bigwigs have decided that Struelens must go. On December 6, Struelens learned that Secretary Rusk had ruled that "considerations of the foreign policy of the United States" meant that Struelens must leave the U. S.

"There is no appeal from this decision," Struelens was told and he was given 24 hours to make known his intention to leave the country.

He promptly called Tshombe, who told him to fight the order, and this he has done. Backed up by the American Civil Liberties Union, Struelens has gone to court. The New York Times, in a scathing editorial, ripped the Administration for its cowardly action.

Paul De Lucia is the ex-convict whom Secretary Rusk seems reluctant to deport. A protégé of Frank Nitti, De Lucia arrived in the United States from Italy in 1920. He was naturalized under a phony name on September 27, 1928.

Subsequent investigation disclosed that De Lucia had a major criminal record when he entered the U. S. He had served time in Italy for murder and was charged with a second killing when he skipped to the United States. An Italian court convicted him in absentia and sentenced him to 21 years imprisonment.

De Lucia has served two prison terms in the U. S., one for extortion of nearly $2 million and another for income tax evasion.

His U. S. citizenship was revoked in 1957 on the ground that it was obtained by willful misrepresentation and concealment of material facts. He was ordered deported in January, 1959.

De Lucia is a sharpie, however, and he wrote to the consulate of virtually every country requesting that he be admitted as an immigrant. With every request, however, he supplied a resume of his criminal activities.

If no country, including his native Italy, would take him,

De Lucia could stay in the States. No country did.

The State Department, however, has powerful weapons with which it can force Italy to admit De Lucia. Under immigration law, the Secretary of State is empowered to cut off all immigration from any nation that refuses to take an alien that he wishes to deport.

Congressman Francis Walter, author of the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act, has demanded that Rusk so act. Attorney General Robert Kennedy wrote Rusk on September 19, asking that he do everything in his power to get rid of De Lucia.

De Lucia remains in the U. S.

Poet's Corner

DECEMBER'S ENCHANTMENT

The frigid cold of December morning, Gale winds and deep drifting snow, Ice on the pond near the village, Adds rich luster to winter's show.

Spruce trees laden in whiteness, Pine trees trimmed with soft flake, Stone fence rows blanketed in ermine, While icy moonbeams dance on the lake.

The snow gives earth a new wardrobe, A complete pure outfit of white, An after-storm star-studded ceiling, To flaunt its grandeur of night.

A calmness lies o'er the "Silent Village," Where a glaze covers mounds of the dead, And spires of ivory-topped towers, Veil tombstones fast in their stead.

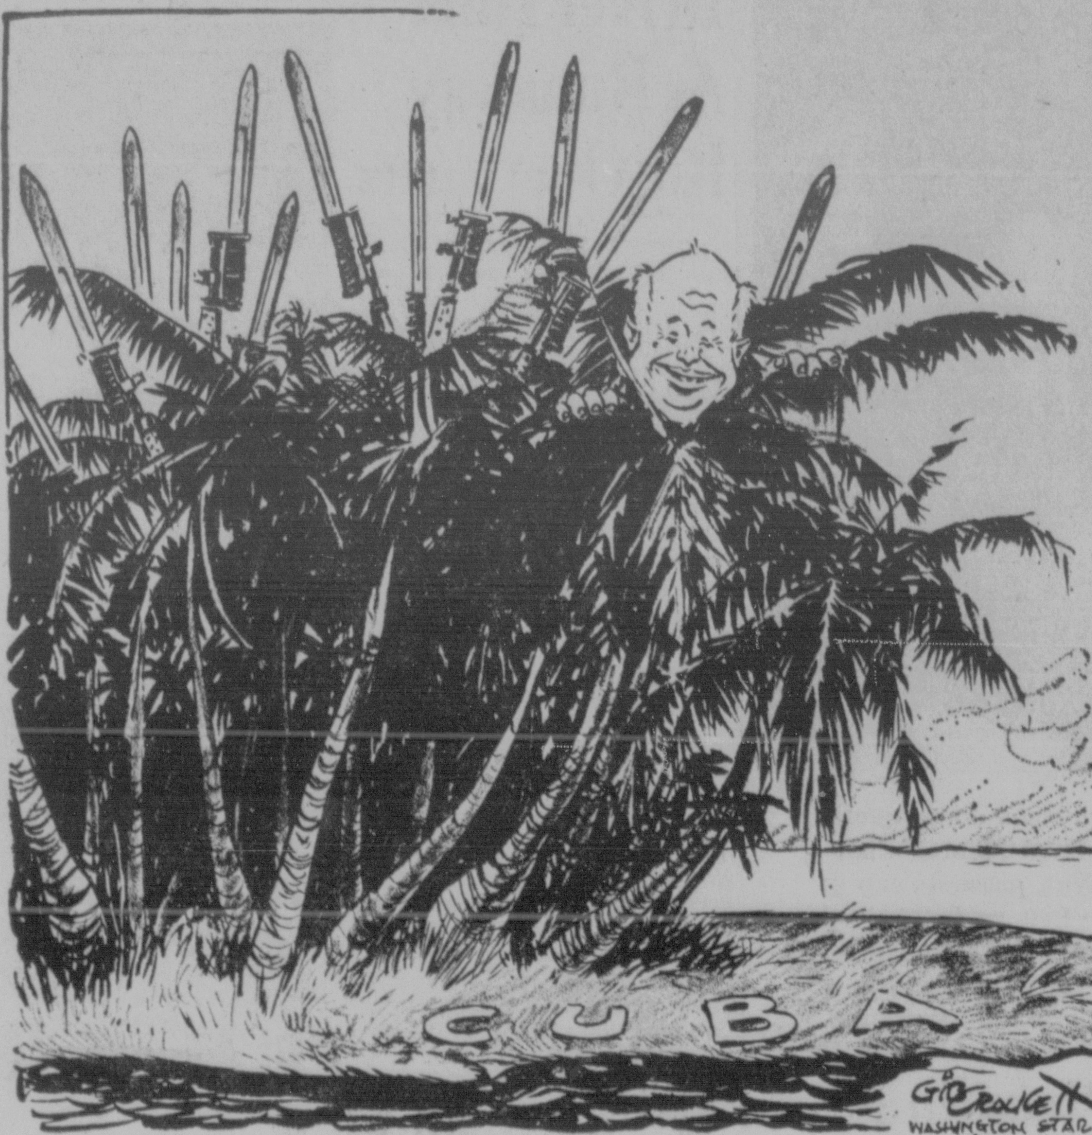

The young folks frolic in merriment, As snowballs sail thru the blue, Sleds glide swiftly down hillsides, And life takes on living anew.

The beauty of snow in the winter, Paints a scene that naught can eclipse, An artist can never sketch a picture, That compares with what nature depicts.

The Pennsylvania Story

Still Just 'Bill' Scranton

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — A question we've been asked frequently of late:

"What's Governor-Elect Scranton like, now that the campaign is over and he's won the governorship?"

At first blush this seems like somewhat of an absurd question; he still wears a tie, he . . . The more we thought about it, the more curious we too became; what is he like now that he's got the governorship under his hat (which he rarely wears)?

To find out we called one of his aides and inquired as to whether we could visit briefly with his excellency. We knew of course that he would be running a heavy schedule . . . and so expected the reply:

"Good gosh, he's running pretty tight (schedulewise) but we'll check him out and see what can be worked in."

A short time later we were called back with the good tidings that we could indeed see his gubernatorial nibs around such and such a time at his downtown apartment suite.

At the appointed hour we arrived at the suite, appalled at the fact that there was not a single tooting horn, no blare of trumpets — and alas, not even a red plush carpet!

Undaunted we sallied into the reception room to properly announce our presence, only to find as we started to open our mouth that we were being greeted by Attorney General-designate Walter E. Alessandrini and a couple of other aides. That killed that.

Shortly we were ushered into the temporary Scrantonian den, along with a Boy Scout who was having his picture taken for a moment with the next Governor and after making certain Mr. Scranton remembered the Scout oath, sign, motto and salute, we settled down to an informal chit-chat.

We gnawed the bone for about half an hour with one Bill Scranton (we can't be this informal once he dons his gubernatorial robe) with our conversation strictly "off the record," and as a columnist for background purposes only — slyly (we thought) checking in our own mind to see just how he was, or is, now that he's won the governorship.

Alas, and it must be said, with considerable journalistic disappointment, we can only report that Bill Scranton — just as he was during the times we saw him privately during the campaign days!

He still fiddles with a lamp switch, if there happens to be one by the chair in which he's sitting; he still grins in that blatted unperturbed fashion even when he knows he's being needed; he still tickles his scalp unconsciously while he's talking — and he still refuses to get excited. Not once did he threaten to plunge his hand into a nearby light socket!

His tie (whose doesn't?) still has a habit of getting a little askew after a few hours of wearing; he looks disgustingly healthy; he still has his hair and his eyes are not bloodshot from strain.

As might be expected his desk was cluttered with papers, memos and a pencil or two; at no time did he throw a fit; at no time did he stomp his feet (his toe snapped briefly as we touched on the merits of the Marine Corps versus the Air Force); in fact we'd say Bill Scranton at this point is exactly the same Bill Scranton that campaigned so doggedly, determinedly and peacefully only a few short weeks ago.

So in answer to the question: what's he like, now that he's won the governorship? About the only conclusion we came to is that Bill Scranton's still just Bill Scranton.

Of course after January 15, it'll be — Governor Bill Scranton, huh!

Shortly before his death, William Faulkner, one of America's greatest authors, told me that Editor Albert Erskine was the finest literary craftsman whom he ever had met. "When he approves a manuscript of mine," said Faulkner, "I know it's ready for the printer."

"Coming from you," I said, "that is a great compliment. Have you told that to Erskine?" I know how delighted he would be.

"No, I haven't," admitted Faulkner with a slow smile. "In my book, when a race horse is running good, Bennett, you don't stop him to feed him a piece of sugar!"

The Allen-Scott Report

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington, December 19 — President Kennedy apparently has a powerful rival as the patronage boss of his administration.

His brother, Attorney General Robert Kennedy, seems to have the final say.

At least that's the bewildering experience of New York State Chairman William McKee. At an unannounced White House conference, the President personally assured him all federal patronage in the state would be channeled through him. But McKee still has to collect on that promise.

Bobby Kennedy appears to have a firm hold on the dispensing of those jobs, working through a personal representative, Paul Corbin, controversial special assistant to Democratic National Chairman John Bailey.

Also with close ties to Bobby are Kenneth O'Donnell, special assistant to the President in charge of his appointments calendar, and Richard Maguire, Democratic National Treasurer. Maguire's secretary is O'Donnell's sister, Justine. White House insiders credit the O'Donnell-Maguire team with virtual control over the selection of jobs over $10,000 — after clearing them with Bobby.

Increasingly, party leaders consider Bobby the real power at the National Committee, with Chairman Bailey largely a figurehead.

Maguire is Bobby's man in wielding this backstage control. When Maguire was installed as Democratic Treasurer earlier this year, he was shifted from the White House payroll to that of the National Committee. But he is still in charge of the so-called "special projects" office of the White House. It is this agency that passes on all job appointments.

Where Mayor Robert Wagner fits into the muddled New York patronage picture is another mystery.

Following his re-election for a third term, after a bitter primary battle in which powerful borough bosses were arrayed against him, Wagner proclaimed himself federal patronage dispenser. But since the party's debacle in the November election, he has been ignored by the administration.

Astonishing Run-around — After the Republicans' sweeping November victory in New York, State Chairman McKee was summoned by the President to discuss plans for reorganizing and rebuilding the Democratic party.

Both agreed that it is essential to win the 1964 presidential election. The President expressed the belief that Governor Rockefeller will be the G.O.P. standard-bearer, and it will be difficult to beat him in his own state, especially with the Democrats in disarray.

McKee said he was willing to undertake the trying job of revitalizing the party, but needed administration help. He pointed out that turning patronage handing over to him would strengthen his hand.

The President readily concurred. He told McKee he would immediately inform Chairman Bailey and others that McKee was in charge of New York patronage.

This presidential-granted authority was extremely short-lived.

As McKee was leaving the White House to meet with Bailey, he was notified by O'Donnell that all patronage matters would have to be cleared with Attorney General Bobby Kennedy.

McKee flatly balked at this astonishing order — delivered within minutes after he had talked to the President.

The ruffled New York chairman told O'Donnell that he considered the President's word was final, and proposed proceedings on the basis of that. McKee added he was willing to discuss how he should operate with Bobby, but had no intention of clearing patronage with him.

To that, O'Donnell replied that all state patronage had to be cleared with the young attorney general.

And that is exactly the way it is working out in New York.

No jobs have been channeled through McKee. On the other hand, Corbin is continuing to impress on state Democratic leaders that he is handling federal patronage for Bobby. To give substance to this claim, Corbin has filled some minor jobs.

McKee and his backers are not taking this setback lying down. They are counter-attacking.

They are proposing that the House Un-American Activities Committee reopen its investigation of Corbin. Last year, testifying before the committee, he denied he had ever been a member of the Communist party or had knowingly associated with Reds.

What happens next remains to be seen.

Super-Flush Dinner — President Kennedy himself is the author of that plan to hold a $1,000-a-plate dinner as part of the January 18 celebration of the second anniversary of the New Frontier.

It has long been an open secret in party circles that he thinks little of the usual $100-a-plate affair, featured by chilled food, chilly desserts, and equally indigestible long, dull and numerous political harangues. Before his White House election, Kennedy stalked out of one of these shindigs saying acidly, "This must have been arranged by an undertaker."

The President also hand-picked Bedford Wynne, wealthy owner of the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League, to run the anniversary celebration. In addition to the $1,000-a-plate dinner, it will include a $100-a-ticket Hollywood-broadway star-studded variety show.

The President and Mrs. Kennedy and Vice President and Mrs. Johnson will grace both events.

Wynne confidently believes the double-barreled fund-raising affair will net the Democratic National Committee more than $1,250,000 — an estimated $400,000 from the $1,000-a-plate dinner, and some $900,000 from the gala show.

The dinner will be held in Washington's new swank hotel-motel a half-dozen blocks from the White House. There will be no speeches — another of the President's ideas. Instead there will be short toasts, and he and the First Lady and Vice President Johnson and his wife will "mingle" among the guests.

The $1,000 tab also will include transportation to the Army, where the gala show will take place, and choice seats there.

A stellar feature of the performance will be Vaughn Meader, whose record spoofing the presidential family has been a best-seller. He will entertain with take-offs of the President.

To improve the notoriously poor acoustics of the huge Armory, the Democratic Committee is spending $30,000 for sound equipment. The committee hopes to recoup this outlay by renting the equipment to other organizations.

Monroe, Pike Deer Kills About 1,300

IT WAS estimated that about 6,000 does were killed in Northeast Pennsylvania during the one-day antlerless deer season Monday.

Figures compiled in the Northeast Division headquarters of the Game Commission at Dallas showed a high kill for the 13 counties in the division.

Roy Trexler, division supervisor, reported yesterday that the number of does taken in the 13 counties should exceed 6,000.

A breakdown of reported kills so far in this area shows: Lackawanna, 225 does; Luzerne, 675; Carbon, 622; Monroe, 490; Pike, 850; Wayne, 1,000; Susquehanna, 450; and Wyoming, 200. Other counties in the division include Sullivan, Bradford, Columbia, Montour and Northumberland.

On a statewide basis, the commission expected a turnout of near 200,000 hunters who were unsuccessful in bagging a buck during the season which opened Dec. 3 and closed last Saturday.

Last year, the one-day antlerless season kill was down considerably across the state with a harvest of only 16,200 white tailed does. This was attributed to an ice storm which hit most of the state and was particularly hard in this region.

Trexler reported that the turnout of doe hunters in regional counties yesterday was up from 10 to 25 per cent because of much better weather this year.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Santa Claus has problems ordinary mortals wot not of. Among them is drinking coffee through a beard. And thereby hangs a Christmas story I overheard yesterday. It happened last Saturday in East Stroudsburg where Santa Claus was taking the children on a free ride through the town on sleigh pulled by a real-enough horse but with a tricycle arrangement of wheels to take the place of snow-covered streets.

If the snow was lacking, the chill of winter wasn't — and the excited children came back rosy from the wind, since sleighs don't come equipped with windshields. Which is all right for one merry circuit but after 50 or so, both Santa and his helper were not turning rosy but blue.

VI Jones, working outside putting up the Christmas decorations, got cold enough herself to sympathize with them, and on one of the circuits invited them in for coffee the next time around. Just how gratefully that invitation was accepted she didn't realize until they stopped in.

Cold as Santa was, he couldn't stop in any public place for even a cup of coffee — let alone hot soup — not without disillusioning the young admirers who followed him everywhere and would be mighty disappointed in a bare-faced Santa — or worse yet one with soup in his beard.

Anyway that's how come Santa's sleigh was parked by the Jones' carriage house — and why Mrs. Jones should have a special place on Santa's Christmas list. Christmas is no time for Santa to catch cold.

And this is no time for Numa Snyder to be sick, either, with his high school choir singing their hearts out all over town. They were real cute at the D&L the other day, explaining his absence and the fact that they would try to do their best so he would be proud of them — which I'm sure he is. I hope he's better for tonight's big program.

And all of Adelaide Krubel's friends were mighty proud of son John's Rhodes Scholarship, too. In fact a lot of happy things have been happening to a lot of people. Frank and Betty Patterson, for instance, already have their biggest Christmas present — their first grandchild who will have the place of honor in the family cradle at their Christmas dinner.

Even misfortunes can be blessings in disguise. When Virginia Shim's flight from Avoca to Washington was cancelled yesterday because of weather she came back to town long enough for a most welcome visit with friends who don't see nearly enough of her. Who knows — my missing knitting needle has turned up a flood of stories of things other people have found in fantastic places.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

and believe me, he's not alone. EVERYONE is coming to town, and many are as gaily dressed as Santa in bright red coats with smiles as jolly as his own. The other afternoon a smartly attired group assembled at the Penn Stroud Hotel for the annual Christmas party of the Monroe County Council of Republican Women, and I have never seen a tea table more Christmasy than theirs. It was entirely covered in red, with an evergreen centerpiece, and the women who presided over the lovely silver services were gowned in matching red. Just the sight of so much red and green made one long to burst forth in a series of carols, among them "Deck the Halls" and "The Twelve Days of Christmas."

One of the easiest ways to set a festive looking holiday table is with the Treat Trees we've been selling in our Wyckoff candy department. They've attracted so much attention from our customers, we may be out of them by now, but I hope not. YOU should have one too! Of crystal plastic, these little trees can be decorated with shiny ornaments, or laden with such delicacies as individual-fruit cakes, bonbons, tiny sandwiches, or petite fours. Our price is just 1.95, but I saw an ad in a magazine the other evening for the very same thing at a much higher price.

Maybe you've not seen the big table in our center aisle filled with gift suggestions, but I find it one of the most interesting displays in our store. Just today, I noticed a very attractive black salad bowl, with matching fork and spoon, filled with tempting delicacies and dressings. This makes a smart looking package. Particularly since the salad set was designed by Russell Wright. The price . . . 5.50. I like those Spice Islands packages too. When I cook, I enjoy experimenting with all types of seasonings, and there are none better than those of Spice Island. One big box contains Paprika, black Java Pepper, Beau monde Seasoning, and several others that no household should ever be without.

On the same table we have coffee grinders of very pretty, highly polished wood. One of these, together with a pound of our excellent fresh-roasted Delray Coffee, would be an ideal gift for the man or woman who enjoys a coffee break better than any other time of the day. I notice too that we carry Spice Islands coffee . . . both the usual type and espresso. It seemed a mite expensive when I glanced at the price, but our salesman told me it is not, as one uses less because it is ground finer. What's more, it dissolves completely on contact with water—no stirring required.

I'm not sure why the proverb specifies that the way to a man's heart is via the tummy. We women love to eat too, and I'm one who will stand right up and say that calories hold no awe for those who enjoy good food. Give me a jar of cheese with an exotic flavor and a few saltines and I can enjoy myself thoroughly. That's why I can imagine no gift more welcome than the packages of assorted cheeses, hors d'oeuvres or jams that are offered in our Wyckoff candy department. Oh, I like Russell Stover candy too . . . and the toy candies that are shaped like animals and look as though they were carved from glass. I think there's nothing prettier than the ribbon candy with its satiny texture and satisfying flavors—but no gift is better than a fancy box, in my opinion.

If you have drawn the name of a friend, for a gift that costs around a dollar, and you know that she delights in anything "old fashioned" in appearance, consider our Pennsylvania Dutch apple butter in brown crocks, sold in the Candy department. I go for these myself . . . keep sugar in one on my cherry table, and gave another to a friend who loves the same type of thing and uses hers in the kitchen. Early American too is the End o' Day glass to be found in ash trays priced at 1.00. On the base of each ash tray is the story about this glass which was originally made in America around 1650. It was customary to allow employees of the glass companies to end the formal working day by using the melted batch, still remaining in the hot furnace pots, to make articles for themselves and their families. In such manner, the pots could be readied for another working day without labor cost. Workers would occasionally go from pot to pot gathering several kinds and colors which they would combine, and occasionally the articles were very unusual and rare. Actually, each End o' Day ash tray made of Imperial Glass today has its own shape and appearance; no two could ever be exactly the same. All are attractive and unusual . . . and each is just 1.00.

Legion Aux. Christmas Cheer Gifts

At the December meeting of George N. Kemp Post, American Legion Aux., the annual Christmas cheer program was completed. The members voted to donate $25 to the Christmas package fund for men in Veterans Hospitals. A TB bond was purchased.

One of the auxiliary's adopted boys at Scotland School was sent a package of gifts. The gifts for the older boy have been sent directly from the department.

Several boxes of stamped Christmas cards were bought to be sent to Veterans Hospitals. The Aux. had already sent $25 to the Wilkes-Barre Veterans Hospital Gift Shop.

Local child welfare and rehabilitation is being cared for by Mrs. L. A. Achterman and Mrs. Elmer Heffer.

It was announced that the Department President's project for the year will be the purchase of a machine for the detection of severe and often fatal kidney diseases, particularly in children. The machine, which tests in a very short time, will be housed in a Philadelphia hospital where it will be available to all. Helping toward the purchase of the machine are the collection of coupons saved by auxiliary members.

A Christmas party with exchange of gifts followed the meeting. Refreshments were served from a table decorated in the Christmas theme by Mrs. John Becker and her committee.

found the cord to my portable electric mixer in the freezer of my refrigerator, a five pound bag of dry dog food in the refrigerator, and I came very close to sprinkling colored glitter on my Christmas cookies instead of colored sugar!

At least in December we can blame it on the time of the year. But in the other 11 months it's more difficult to justify the odd things that happen.

Ah, well, it won't be long now until the rest of you can return to normalcy. Enjoy next week; plan ahead. If you're entertaining at all during the holidays, here are some good recipes.

Zippy Hot Appetizers
(pictured above)

Yield: 10 to 15 servings.
10 oz. package brown 'n serve sausage links
1/2 cup light brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/4 cup white vinegar
10 oz. can pineapple chunks, drain and reserve 1/2 cup juice
1/2 cup water
1/2 green pepper, cut into 1/4 inch squares
1/2 cup maraschino cherries

Cut sausage links into thirds, crosswise. Brown lightly in a skillet. In a chafing dish mix sugar, salt, and cornstarch. Stir in vinegar, pineapple juice, and water. Boil for 5 minutes.

Add remaining ingredients. Serve hot from a chafing dish. Have guests spear chunks with wooden picks.

If you don't have a chafing dish, keep appetizer warm on a hot server, or set a dish over a holder that has a candle warmer.

If you're looking for a new dip recipe, try this one. It's very "Cheesy", but with a different flavor. I've already served it to guests, and the men licked the platter clean!

Creamy Cheese Dip
2 cups shredded sharp cheddar cheese
8 ounces cream cheese
1 small clove garlic, crushed
Two-thirds cup beer
2 tablespoons poppy seed
2 tablespoons sweet-pickle relish

Let cheese stand at room temperature about 1/2 hour. Cream cheddar, add cream cheese and garlic; continue creaming. Add beer slowly and beat until creamy. Stir in poppy seed and relish. Keep refrigerated. Makes about 2 1/2 cups. (This can be whizzed in a blender until creamy).

Katsy Bachman gave me another recipe from the White Heron Recipe Exchange, and, um, sounds good.

Ann George's Pickled Shrimp
2 1/2 lbs. frozen or fresh shrimp in shells
1/2 cup celery tops
1/4 cup mixed pickling spices
1 tablespoon salt
2 cups sliced onions
7 or 8 bay leaves

Cover shrimp with boiling water and add celery tops, mixed pickling spices, and salt. Cover and simmer for 5 minutes. Drain. Then peel and de vein under cold water. Alternate cleaned shrimp, onions, and bay leaves in shallow baking dish. Marinate in the following:

1 1/2 cups salad oil
1/4 cup white vinegar
3 tablespoons capers and juice
2 1/2 teaspoons celery seed
1 1/2 teaspoon salt
Few drops Tabasco sauce

Mix well and pour over cooked shrimp. Cover and chill at least 24 hours, spooning marinade over shrimp occasionally. Keeps at least a week.

When I gave you Margie Farmer's enchilada recipe, I told you that I had a dip recipe her husband prepared. It's a good one for the holidays.

Ernie's Mexican Guacamole
(Avocado Dip)

2 avocados, very ripe, halved
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 small onion, cut fine
1 canned pimiento
2 tablespoons black olives, cut
2 slices bacon, broiled
mayonnaise

In blender container, spoon pulp of avocados and all but bacon and mayonnaise. Cover, blend 3 seconds. Turn into small bowl. Crumble the crisply broiled bacon into mixture, cover with mayonnaise to prevent discoloration. At serving time, mix well. Yield: About 1 1/2 cups appetizer or salad dressing.

His Job Is Child's Play: The Life Of A Toy Tester

By Mary Campbell
AP Newsfeatures Writer

New Haven, Conn. (AP)—Every day is like a child's Christmas morning for 35-year-old Spike Fitzgerald.

He plays with toys. But he isn't greedy. His wife, they sponsor at the Lutheran Church and their next-door neighbors play, too.

For the gregarious Fitzgerald it's fun. "I come home and I say, 'Clear the living room' and I set up a game or whatever it is and we play with it and I leave it for weeks."

It's also the way he makes his living, with the A. C. Gilbert Co., maker of the erector set. Fitzgerald is Gilbert's product marketing merchandiser, in charge of dreaming up new toys for the company and improving the old ones.

"I first came in just to handle product management of trains," Fitzgerald says with a grin. "Then I started sticking my Irish nose into some other things."

So far, he has come up with two new toys, a gas-powered, remote-controlled plastic airplane and an auto racing game.

Fitzgerald first tested the plane with his wife Doris and 8-year-old son Jimmy in the church parking lot one Saturday afternoon. As she tells it, Jimmy learned to fly the plane before she did. "I overcontrolled it and when you do that, it goes up or directly down. When I'd try to straighten it out, it would zoom into the ground and pieces would go all over."

"I said to Spike, 'What makes it go up and down?' and he said, 'The tail elevator.'"

"After we got home I put a clamp clothespin on the tail elevator so it wouldn't move so far. We tried flying again and I did very well."

When the plane finally went on the market, it had a stud under the front wing doing the work of Mrs. Fitzgerald's clamp clothespin.

It also had a contribution from Jimmy, and one from a family friend in Denver. Jimmy decided (after hundreds of flights, and though he didn't realize he was a test pilot) that 30 feet of line between himself and the plane is perfect for New Haven's average 12 mile-an-hour wind. Forty-two feet of line is sold with the plane, but 30 feet is recommended for use at first.

Jimmy says, "If the line was too long, I couldn't even get it off the ground. And if the line's too short, I got dizzy. I went around too fast."

The friend in Denver determined that the plane would fly in the mile-high city, and consequently at lower altitudes, at 15,000 (and not the original 12,000) revolutions of the propeller per minute.

Her Own Leisure Interests Determined A New Career

By Roberta Fleming Roesch

The things you absorb and build up in your hours of leisure may, in addition to giving you pleasure for the present, lead you to a future career.

At least that's the way a career was born for Mrs. Lillian Ross, a sophisticated, imaginative woman of impeccable taste who's something of a cultural encyclopedia.

Unique Career

Because this description applies so aptly, Mrs. Ross presently has a unique career as Director of Special Events for the Society of Gourmets for the Leisure Arts.

And in case you think, as you glance at that title, that Mrs. Ross's career is directing an assorted group of chefs, take a hasty turn-around and look a second time.

Enjoying The Arts

Specifically, The Society of Gourmets for the Leisure Arts is an organization built on the premise that, with today's increased leisure hours, many people like and welcome discerning, expert help in finding the best ways to enjoy the leisure arts — food, art, theatre, music, travel, reading, et cetera.

Membership in the Society costs $25 per year. In return, each member may take advantage of special prices, previews and privileges available only to the Society.

In her work with the Society, Mrs. Ross devotes her time to discovering the best opportunities whereby the organization's 7,000 out-of-town notices and she's on hand to persuade its producers to give the Society a special private preview.

"I was born loving art and culture and I've lived with it all my life," Mrs. Ross told me, when I asked her to explain what pointed the way to work that's so unique.

"So, actually, the career spot in which I find myself now is the perfect proof that the things you absorb and build up in your hours of leisure, all through your life, can sometimes, in addition to giving you pleasure for the present, lead you to a future career."

Contributed Much

Mrs. Ross's life, however, hasn't been all leisure. Before her work with the Society she worked professionally in interior design. And for her work in that field, too, the taste and love for art and beauty that she'd absorbed and developed, often in her leisure, contributed immeasurably.

"When you put everything in one capsule," she concluded, "it all comes down to the fact that what I always enjoyed developing in my leisure turned out to be the essence of my career."

"So my advice to everyone is to take advantage of the opportunities of leisure. You never know where it may lead you!"

650-750 Expected To Die On Highways Over Holiday

CHICAGO (AP) — A Christmas holiday traffic death toll of between 650 and 750 is estimated for the nation by the National Safety Council.

The 102-hour span for 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Christmas Day, the council said yesterday, also could bring disabling injuries to between 27,000 and 33,000 persons from auto accidents.

One of every four of the impending traffic deaths is likely to be that of a pedestrian.

The estimates were based on an evaluation of traffic experience in past Christmas periods and an evaluation of this year's traffic volume.

During a comparable nonholiday period at this time of year, the council said, 470 persons are killed and 20,000 injured in traffic.

Howard Pyle, National Safety Council president, said studies of past Christmas weekend accidents showed more than half the drivers involved had been drinking and that speed—driving too fast for conditions—was a factor in seven-eighths of the accidents.

The most deadly span of the Christmas holiday weekend for pedestrians has been the last six hours of Christmas Eve, with the final hours of Christmas night almost as lethal to walkers.

Pyle repeated an often-recited caution to party tipplers: "If you have been celebrating, please don't try to drive or walk home. Take a cab or bus, instead."

The number of traffic deaths during the holiday period would be sharply under estimates, were Americans to heed basic safety rules, he said.

These include: Don't drive too fast for road and traffic conditions; obey traffic laws and signs; allow plenty of time for any trips; be on the alert for dangerous mistakes on the part of the other drivers and pedestrians, and, again, don't drink before driving.

If you put electric heat to work outdoors

This will never happen indoors

ONLY ELECTRIC HEAT CAN DO IT!

Protect your house from winter damage with convenient, dependable electric heat. It works outside, as well as inside, to stop winter freeze-up.

Electric heating cable can be easily installed on roofs, rain gutters and downspouts. This cable provides a mild source of heat, which eliminates ice jams. Melted snow runs off, instead of re-freezing and building up. When this happens, water backs up under roofing and may damage house insulation, ceilings, walls and furniture. Electric heat also prevents the heavy buildup of ice which can pull spouting away from the house, and damage wood or shutters.

This winter, enjoy the safety, protection and convenience electric heat provides. Call us, or see your dealer, for complete details.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Wednesday, December 19, 1962
March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Desires, desires, all will have some irritants to hurdle. Precision, patience are musts, and agreeableness. Don't get bogged down in ambition or force. Many gains to work for.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Appreciating those little good things again stressed. Thus can we have a happier day, we're better, resulting in finer accomplishment. Seek answers from wise sources.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Adequacy, simplifying arrangements will count. Also, painstaking effort through the minor, necessary tasks. Summarize possibilities, and take it from there.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Begin by making up your mind that certain small, messy things you would like to do; then strive steadily.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Besides doing your work well, there are cultural and recreational areas to consider as you go along. Each in turn, and with due attention.

What is ahead? Needed changes? August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Technicians, skilled and unskilled necessary work ask diligence, respect for the technical and trying. Keep personality at year-round "sunny climate." Turn aside gains.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — The lighter influences may take over here, there. Work up to everything with ease but sure-footedness. Manifest your individualism and spirit for the best in life.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — Success is usually an old friend of yours, but getting to it is sometimes your nemesis, in that you do not begin until late hours, then cram. This and some other obvious warnings about.

November 24 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Nothing ventured, nothing won or achieved, remember! Do you need help, go seek it, from proper heads. Science, education, outside activities ask your brains and brawn.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — (Taurus) one of the planets in excellent aspect. Yet you will have to recognize others will not be in equal position, retreat, hit. All with forbearance, steady endurance.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Do not hesitate to tackle whatever is your order for day, however be sparing with excess words and motion. Praise another; forget it if they forget to say a good word.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Less than average in some spots, better than ordinary in others. Take time to sift the best from your offerings, without omitting or hurrying anywhere. Take a calculated risk.

YOU BORN TODAY: Here is vitality, enthusiasm at its topmost. You love action, will work hard for success. Can be bitter if disappointed, so check this. Not all successes are what they seem — some are definitely NOT for us. Be happy in daily little good things and the chances will come from this. Be as warm toward those long as to those who sponsor you. A bit of healthy criticism does us a kind deed. If we would note. Keep out of conflicts with associates, excesses in pastimes, eating, drinking, indulgence generally. Your vital nature is always highly charged, so tuning down occasionally helps. Don't lose those golden dreams in the wind, some are golden. Direction with caution, quality urged — not fear.

New Process By Westinghouse

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Westinghouse Electric Corp. said Tuesday its scientists have developed a way to use superconducting magnets outside of the usual bath of liquid helium.

The magnet now can be used in air at room temperatures instead of under special temperature conditions and in a restricted liquid environment, the firm said.

Gregory A. Monito, a Westinghouse research official, said, "This new magnet...makes possible a wide variety of scientific experiments which previously could be conducted with superconducting magnets only with difficulty or not at all."

Newfoundl and Area Yule Season Officially Under Way

NEWFOUNDLAND — The lighting of the community Christmas tree "officially" signaled the arrival of the holiday season in this area. The Rev. Larry Lindomuth, minister of the Moravian Church, led the tree-lighting service of the Greene-Dreher Women's Club at Southern Wayne Joint School, with Scripture reading and carol singing.

More than 50 members and friends of the club attended the Christmas party, business meeting and program. Mrs. Edythe Gilpin, South Sterling, led the group in repeating the Christmas Story from the Gospel of St. Luke.

Two new members, Mrs. Margaret Schoenagel and Mrs. Letha Schoenagel, were welcomed, and the resignation of Mrs. Barthella Barnes was accepted with regret.

It was noted that new lights were purchased this year for the Christmas tree. Named to the January refreshment committee were Loretta Evans, chairman; Frances VanBusckirk, Trudy Tobey and Edith Simons.

A "Toothpick Tree" made by Verna Mae Schmalze, was awarded to Peggy Beehn for her Christmas centerpiece, which was, appropriately enough, a Toothpick Tree! Others who displayed and explained how to make their Christmas decorations and centerpieces were Martha Smith, Ethel Akers, Gertrude Lupcho, Virginia Baughan, Peg Schoenagel, Joan Hutchins, Ruth Fetherman, Alice Skelton and Edythe Gilpin.

Mrs. Alice Feigel, who was visiting here from Washington, D.C., was awarded the Jolly Doll.

Gifts were exchanged during the party and refreshments were served by Ann Kramer, Eleanor Staph, Edna Smith, Thelma Peet, Ruth Cunningham, Pearl Hause, Louise Sowden, Shirley Beck e r, Jacqueline Croft and Alice Skelton.

The next meeting of the club will be held on January 8 at 8 p. m. at the school.

In keeping with the holiday season, we've taken artistic liberty with our familiar seal of service. But we hope you'll still see in it our dedication to serve you well...a dedication we find especially rewarding at Christmas time as we bring you the warm, reassuring voices of friends and loved ones, near or far.

The men and women of the telephone company are glad to play a part in making your holiday season a happy one.

Merry Christmas

Mountaineers Win 3rd; Edge Bangor

BANGOR—Coach Bob Wert's Mountaineers of Stroud Union last night made it three in a row as they outlasted a tough Bangor combine, 70-68, mostly on the fabulous shooting of the first period by the visiting Mounties who hit on 80 percent of their shots to take an eight-point 22-14 lead.

Four of the Mountaineers hit in double figures to combine to hand the Slaters of Coach Bill Pensyl their second straight defeat. Glen Blasing topped the team with 18, while Dave Pierson notched 17, Ed Nevil hit for 15 and Henry Ray added 12.

Bangor's Dick Snyder took game honors with a 19-point production while Pete Speer and Pete Heard each added 17 in a losing cause.

Battle Back
The Slaters battled back gamely after that first-period onslaught by the Stroud Union squad as they held the Mountaineers on even terms in the second period, 16-16, and outscored the visitors in each of the remaining two sessions by margins of 16-14 and 22-18.

In fact, Bangor actually overcame the early-built Stroud Union lead in the final period with three minutes remaining to hold a brief 62-60 edge. But Henry Ray used a hot hand and sharp eye to regain the lead for the Mountaineers who staved off the late rally by the Slaters.

In the end, however, it was a sharper eye at the foul line by Stroud Union which proved the difference between the two clubs. The Mountaineers connected on 18 of 23 shots from the foul marker, while Bangor hit on 18 of 28 attempts.

In other words, in the five extra trips Bangor had at the foul line, they missed them all.

Southern Wayne Loses By 68-56

WALLENPAUPACK — Southern Wayne's Stags last night went down to their third straight Wayne County Conference defeat as Wallenpaupack took the measure of the Stags by a 68-56 score.

Southern Wayne, which usually makes a habit of starting slow and finishing fast, switched the formula completely last night on the winner's court but the results were the same.

The Stags opened with a 21-point burst in the first period to hold a 10-point advantage but then were outscored in each of the three remaining periods as Wallenpaupack overcame that deficit to win handily.

Southern Wayne is now 1-3 on the season, with their only victory coming at the expense of winless Pleasant Valley.

Load Dwindles
Wallenpaupack hit the nets for 17 points in the second period while holding the Stags to a mere eight as Southern Wayne's first-period lead dwindled to 29-28.

In the third quarter, Wallenpaupack quickly took the lead and never relinquished it as they outscored the Stags in that session by a 16-10 margin. In the final canto, Wallenpaupack hit for a 24-17 edge.

Bob Duty took game honors with a 20-point effort for the Stags on eight field goals and four free throws, while George Hibbs and Ed Strada each hit for 10 apiece. For Wallenpaupack, Bob Brown led with 14 while Pete Warner hit for 13, Jack Spaul accounted for 12, and Dave Neil and Don Strong each had 11.

In the preliminary JV game, Southern Wayne recorded its fourth straight win with an overwhelming 48-16 count.

CINCINNATI (AP)—Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers won the National League earned run championship last season, but teammate Don Drysdale took most of the pitching honors.

Koufax yielded 52 earned runs in 184 innings for a 2.54 ERA, the official averages released Tuesday. Drysdale, the southpaw won 14 games and lost 7 although he was sidelined for two months with a finger injury.

Drysdale, winner of the Cy Young award as the majors' outstanding pitcher, led in five categories: Games won—25; strikeouts—232; innings pitched—314; games started—41 and total batsmen faced—1,289.

The hard-working right-hander finished fourth in earned run average with 2.84. Bob Shaw of Milwaukee was the runner up with 2.80 while Cincinnati's Bob Purkey was third with 2.81.

Purkey and Joey Jay of Cincinnati and Jack Sanford of the San Francisco Giants were the only others to win at least 20 games. Sanford had 24 victories, Purkey 23 and Jay 21. Purkey, who lost only five games, had the highest winning percentage, .821.

McKinley Rated No. 1 U.S. Netman

NEW YORK (AP)—Chuck McKinley, 21-year-old mainstay of the American Davis Cup team, and Darlene Hard, the veteran internationalist, head the nation's tennis players in the 1962 ratings of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association.

McKinley of St. Ann, Mo., tops the men's list for the first time. Second a year ago, the crew-cut cloister replaced the slumping Whitney Reed of Alameda, Calif., as the No. 1 player in the rankings. Reed had a terrible year and was dropped to sixth.

Miss Hard of Long Beach, Calif., was ranked first among the women for the third straight year. The stocky, 26-year-old Californian was beaten in the finals of the U.S. championships at Forest Hills by Margaret Smith, the tall Australian slammer.

The rankings were recommended by the men's and women's committees but must be approved at the USLTA's annual meeting at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., next Feb. 2. Usually that is just a formality.

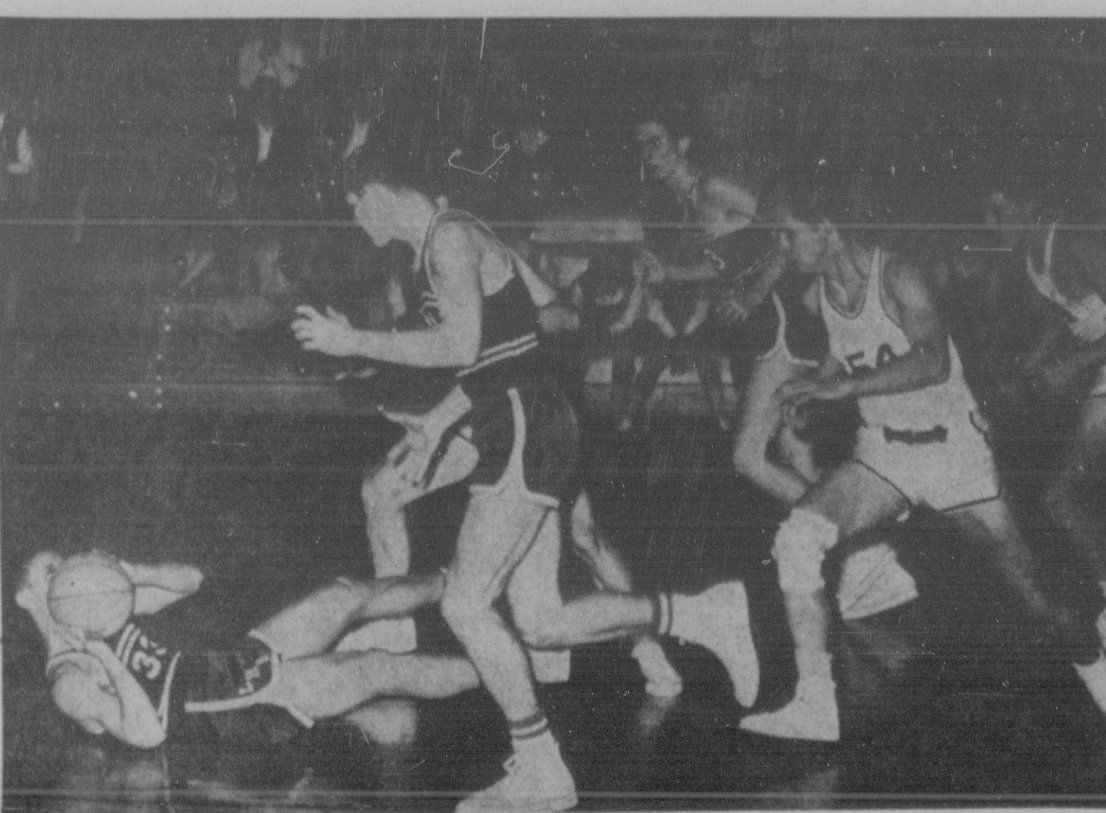

Frank Froehling, III, 20-year-old collegian from Coral Gables, Fla., was ranked second and veteran Hamilton Richardson of Dallas was placed third. Froehling was boosted from sixth place. There were no changes in the top three of the women's rankings.

DOWN, NOT OUT — Leighton's Paul Keiser is flat on his back with ball but gets immediate help from host of teammates as East Stroudsburg's Earl Palmer (54) also rushes in on play during action last night in Eastburg gym. Leighton won ballgame, 61-51. (Staff Photo by MacLeod)

Cavaliers Lose To Leighton, 61-51

EAST STROUDSBURG High School's Cavaliers last night went down to their second defeat of the season as a previously winless Leighton five broke open a nip-and-tuck battle midway in the third period to take a 61-51 victory in the Eastburg gym.

Until the mid part of the third canto, neither team was separated at any time by more than four points. But with Leighton leading by 36-35, the visiting Indians put on a sudden scoring burst behind the shooting of Dave Werner and Glen Hunsicker to open up a 46-38 bulge at the end of three quarters.

Werner was the game's leading scorer with 19 points as he led Leighton to its first victory in five games. Also breaking into double figures for the winners were Hunsicker with 15 and Joe Armbruster with 11.

Jack Van Horn topped the Cavaliers in the scoring department as he pumped in a total of 15 points on six field goals and three free throws. Jimmy Steele added 13 for the boys of Coach Dale Baker while Bill Reese dumped in 11.

It was a see-saw battle during the first half with the Cavaliers taking a 12-11 lead at the end of the first stanza. But Leighton's trio of Werner, Armbruster and Hunsicker combined during the second period to give the Indians a 27-25 halftime edge. With less than a minute remaining, Leighton opened up a four-point spread—largest of the game up to that point—before Bill Williams connected on a one-hander to narrow the gap to two points.

But Leighton widened the margin to 46-38 at the close of the third period and were never headed after that.

Bills' Gilchrist Is AFL's Top Player

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Cookie Gilchrist, a 243-pound fullback who spent nine years in the Canadian League before he joined the Buffalo Bills, was named Player-of-the-Year in the American Football League Tuesday by an Associated Press committee of writers and broadcasters from the eight league cities.

Gilchrist made a shambles of the league, becoming the first man to gain over 1,000 yards as he ran over people and around them for a total of 1,096 yards on 214 carries. Gilchrist later was joined in the 1,000-plus club by Dallas' Abner Haynes and Houston's Charley Tolar but won with room to spare.

"I have no college education so it's been a question of money with me all along," said Gilchrist earlier in the season. "I had to battle all the time for the kind of pay I felt I rated."

When the Bills acquired Gilchrist from the Toronto Argonauts last summer he was "waived" out of the Canadian League. He had to overcome a reputation of being hard to handle.

The Bills, who reportedly paid him $20,000 salary, got their money's worth in a tremendous performance. He scored 13 touchdowns and averaged 5.1 yards per carry.

Sent To Canada
Gilchrist, now 27, said he went to Cleveland in 1954 when he was 19, fresh out of high school, and was sent to Canada for experience. He played with five teams in three leagues before he finally was waived out in August.

Gilchrist received 13 of the 24 votes cast by the committee. Len Dawson, 27-year-old former National Football League quarterback from Purdue, was second with eight votes for his fine year with the Dallas Texans. Charley Tolar, Houston fullback; Chris Burford, Dallas end; and Bud McFadin, Denver's 280-pound defensive tackle, each received one vote.

Warrior '5' Travels To Scranton

EAST STROUDSBURG State College travels to Scranton tonight in search of their second win of the campaign with hopes of snapping a three-game losing skid.

Coach Mort Hochheiser's Warriors have dropped four of their first five hoop engagements while only Cheyney has fallen to the ESSC court troops.

The Warrior guards dropped their opener at Montclair, N. J., and after trimming Cheyney's Wolves have lost to Bloomsburg, West Chester and Shippensburg for three consecutive Pennsylvania State Colleges Athletic Conference defeats.

Tonight's non-conference battle at Scranton marks the Warriors' second straight game on the road and their final appearance for 1962. Their next game is against Kutztown at home, Jan. 5.

Pitt Names All-Opponent Team For '62

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Twelve players, including quarterbacks George Mira of Miami and Darlye Lunonica of Notre Dame, were named to Pitt's 1962 all-opponent football team Tuesday.

Mira passed for 162 yards and ran for 86 more while Lunonica tossed four touchdown passes in their teams' victories over the Panthers.

Others named by Pitt which had a 5-5 record: Ends Jim Kelly of Notre Dame and John Simon of Miami; tackles George Bednar of Notre Dame and Terry Monaghan of Penn State; guards John Erby of California and Ed Schillo of Army; center Ralph Baker of Penn State.

Halfbacks Roger Kochman of Penn State and Ronnie Goodwin of Baylor and fullback Steve Bernzansky of West Virginia.

Grid Alumni Eye Lions

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Three prominent Penn State football alumni and a former heavyweight boxing champion watched the itany Lions work out Tuesday for their Gator Bowl game with Florida at Jacksonville Dec. 29.

Lenny Moore of the Baltimore Colts and Andy Stynchula and Jimmy Kerr of the Washington Redskins were the alumni who watched Coach Rip Engle send the Penn State squad through a second day of practice at the Naval Academy.

They were joined by retired boxing champ Rocky Marciano, who is a partner in a restaurant here.

Dallas, Houston Are Rated Even

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Dallas and Houston should be an even match in their Sunday game for the American Football League title according to the All-Star teams picked for The Associated Press by a committee of writers and broadcasters from the eight league cities.

Dallas placed six on the offensive and defensive units and Houston landed five for a total of 11 of the first 22 men. However, Chris Burford, fleet Dallas pass catcher, is injured. That leaves five All-Stars from each side for the big game in Houston.

Two Texan Backs

The Texans took over half of the All-Star backfield with quarterback Len Dawson and halfback Abner Haynes. The Oilers placed flanker back Charley Hennigan. Cookie Gilchrist of Buffalo, the league-leading ground gainer, rounded out the backfield at fullback. Houston's second All-Star on offense was Al Jamison, 245-pound former Colgate tackle.

On defense, the Dallas club had linebackers Sherrill Headrick and E.J. Holub and safety Bob Hunt on the first team. Houston placed Don Floyd at end, Ed Hunsman at tackle and Tony Banfield at corner back.

Five From Houston
Houston also had quarterback George Blanda, center Bob Schmidt and fullback Charley Tolar on the offensive second team and linebacker Doug Cline and safety Jim Norton on defense. Dallas had rookie Fred Arbanas on the second team on offense and end Mel Branch and tackle Jerry Mays on the second defensive unit.

In addition to the Dallas-Houston contingent, the first team on offense included tackle Harold Olson, guard Billy Shaw and fullback Gilchrist of Buffalo, center Jim Otto of Oakland, end Lionel Taylor of Denver and guard Ron Mix of San Diego.

Denver put tackle Bud McFadin and safety Austin Gonsoulin on the first defensive team. Oakland placed corner back Fred Williamson, Boston end Larry Eisenhauser and New York had linebacker Larry Grantham.

Saines Signs With AL's Bills

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—George Saines, Michigan State's All-America fullback, signed Tuesday to play with the Buffalo Bills of the American Football League, it was announced here.

Saines of Canton, Ohio, was a sixth-round draft choice of the Dallas Texans of the AFL and also the sixth-round choice of the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League.

Ralph B. Wilson Jr., owner of the Bills, said he had obtained the rights to Saines from Dallas by agreeing to give the Texans a high-draft choice of Buffalo next season.

Saines, a 21-year-old, 190-pounder, was named to The Associated Press first string All-America team this season.

At Michigan State, he played fullback on offense and alternated as a linebacker and safety man on defense.

Cards Win Fourth; Trim Scranton Prep

SWIFTWATER — Perennially powerful Scranton Prep ran into undefeated Pocono Mountain Joint last night and the Cardinals sent away the defending champions of the Lackawanna Catholic League a 44-38 loser in a thrill-packed court duel in PM's gymnasium. The victory was the Cardinals' fourth straight of the season.

It wasn't all roses for the charges of Harry Werkheiser who had to resort to a freeze in the last three minutes to withstand a later Prep offense. However, it was all Pocono Joint the first three stanzas.

With Norby Ryan setting the pace in the opening stanza by tossing in nine of his 19 tallies, the Cards built up a 13-9 edge. PM held the spread in the second. Norb's brother, John, connected for seven of his night's output of 10. Pocono led 24-20 at the intermission.

Pocono Mountain pulled away in the third canto as little Dave Ruchelman and Ron Vican dumped ed five and four points respectively to guide Werkheiser's five to a 38-26 bulge.

The last eight minutes saw Prep step up its offensive pattern before running into the Pocono freeze.

It was the fourth straight triumph for Werkheiser's team. Prep is now 1-1 on the season. In the preliminary, Prep's underlings defeated PM's junior varsity, 44-22.

Pen Argyl Loses To Jim Thorpe

JIM THORPE — Pen Argyl's Green Knights went down to their second defeat of the season here last night as the Indians of Jim Thorpe—Class C defending state champs—took the measure of Coach Frank Varli's crew, 63-57.

The Knights trailed most of the way but managed to pull within one point of the Indians with three minutes remaining before Jim Thorpe put on the final scoring burst of the evening to pull away.

The Knights trailed by a 14-12 spread at the end of the first period, and were outscored by a 16-11 bulge in the second session as the Indians took a halftime lead of 30-23.

Both teams battled on even terms in the third canto as each club tallied 19 points but the Knights were outscored again in the final quarter by 16-14.

John Kmetz was the game's leading scorer with 23 points, while Bob Hydro added 15 and Joe Armbruster tallied 15.

For Pen Argyl, it was Dave Turtzo once again taking the scoring laurels for the losers with a 20-point production on six field goals and eight free throws. Also hitting in double digits for the Knights were Geoffrey R

Interpreting The News

Little Firm Ground For JFK, Mac

Last week's conferences among the Western allies in Europe appear to have produced little firm ground from which British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and President Kennedy can take off in their talks at Nassau this week.

In one matter which has become a major issue despite its relatively minor and tactical nature, the two chiefs of state are having to take with them their defense ministers who were supposed to have covered the ground—Skybolt—last week.

Such information as is available on another major problem—the European Common Market—suggests that Macmillan failed to form with French President Charles de Gaulle, any sufficiently concise premise to give himself and Kennedy a firm handhold in their own discussions.

More and more—and more and more unhappily—it appears that Europe is arriving at a policy of protectionism such as the United States began slowly to abandon 30 years ago.

3-Way Grouping

Following the De Gaulle-Macmillan talks there is now open talk—with both sides more or less accusing the other of starting it—of a three-way grouping of trade spheres in the West, instead of the two-fold harnessing with which the United States had hoped to confront the Communist sphere.

The British-European market disagreement and the U.S.-British-French nuclear disagreement now seem likely to crowd what should have been the major Kennedy-Macmillan topic into the back ground. That is how to make the best use of burgeoning Communist weaknesses.

Britain and France are so intent on duplicating U.S. nuclear power as a part of their own national political and military positions that they pay little heed to American insistence on the North Atlantic Treaty Organization as the proper holding company for both nuclear and improved conventional defense measures in Europe.

It all ties together, since Britain and France would be in a better position for economic compromise if they did not devote so much of their resources to that segment of the military posture already provided by the United States.
